ODD FELLOWS' RALLY.

Celebration of the Fifty-Second Anniversary at London.

"THE DAY WE CELEBRATE."

Yesterday morning at an early hour, a large number of our citizens rose from their matin slumbers to be in readiness to attend the Odd Fellows' celebration at Loudon, commemorating the fifty-second anniversary of the introduction of the Order in this country.

Hasty toilets were made and breakfast soon dispatched, when these belonging to soon dispatched, when those belonging to the Order wended their way to the Lodge room, while the ladies and others not members went to the depot to take the special train provided for the occasion.

MARCH TO THE DEPOT.

By seven o'clock a large majority of the members of both lodges had assembled and were formed in the order of juniority, and, preceded by the Mechanics' Cornet Band, marched in procession to the depet, and those who had not precured tickets did so and took their scats.

The engine was tastefully decorated with wreaths of every reeps in honor of the conwreaths of evergreens in honor of the oc-casion and the living freight borne, and made good time on the way.

THE START.

About eight o'clock, the whistle sounded and we were off, at first slowly, then with gradually accelerated speed, until the woods and hills on either side of the road were passed like a moving panorama.

Nothing of particular interest occurred until the train reached Lenoir's Station, where it was run on a siding to wait until the passenger train got by, and the oppor-tunity was embraced by many to visit the the points of interest in the vicinity.

LENGIR'S FACTORY.

In five minutes after the train stopped the Lenoir establishment was filled with the wearers of white, red, green, black and blue cottars and searfs, examining the machinery and the modus operandi of transforming the raw cotton into thread, baled ready for shipment. About twenty opera-tives are employed, and the machinery in the upper stories consist of five reams. eight spinning frames, seven carders and two drawing frames. About 900 or 1,000 dozen of thread are manufactured each day,

The Knoxville delegation disembarked and the procession was re-formed, headed by the Cornet Band, members of Monroe Lodge, No. 93, and next members of the Knoxville Lodges in the same order as before remediate. next members of the Knoxville Lodges in the same order as before named. After marching through the principal streets, the procession proceeded to the Cumberland Presbyterian Church Academy, which had been prepared for the occasion so far as could be. The speakers' stand was surmounted by wreaths of evergreens and garlands of flowers, presenting a beautiful appearance. The Band took their seats near the stand, the ladies and citizens generally were provided with seats in the centre, and members of the Order on either side. The building was densely crowded, but the audience were refreshed during the speaking by water handed round, showing speaking by water handed round, showing great forethought on the part of the com-mittee of arrangements, and suffered but little inconvenience.

ITRODUCTORY REMARKS.

After an air from the Band, Dr. James Rodgers, Grand Master of the State, brief y stated the object of the assemblage and added that hundreds and thousands of our bretheren were engaged in celebrating in the same noble cause. Prayer was then offered by Rev. E. E. Hoss.

REV. R. D. BLACK,

Worthy Grand Chaplain of the State, was worthy Grand Chaptain of the State, was ntroduced, who explained a great many nteresting facts regarding the principles of Odd Fellowship, which if fully known would inspire the people with a higher egard for the Order than is now evinced y many.

Mr. Black also read statistics showing he origin of the institution, which had been claimed by enthusiasts to date from the conference of the confe he time of our great forefather Adam, while he yet dwelt in his Eden home, vhile yet others variously estimated its rigin as dating from the time of Moses, and others, more modern still, claimed that he Order was instituted by Roman soldrs in the year of the Christian era 55. The first attempts to introduce it in the

The Order was philanthropic in its nature and dispensed its charities in a manner that vaunted not itself, unobtrusively, but always worthity. Fifty-two years ago, five men in a private room at a hotel in Baltimore, Maryland, organized the first Lodge that withstood opposition in the United States, and to-day the Independent Order of Odd Fellows number over a half a million of members, and its Lodges are scattered over every State in the Union.

There was not room enough for all at once, but as fast as one set got through another would take their place, until all were filled. MISCELLANEOUS.
The Mechanics' Cornet Band, though but recently organized, were warmly commended, and deserve great praise for their proficiency, though it is only a natural result when one considers the talent of their accomplished leader, Mr. M.
